Luther High School South

87th and Kedzie

Chicago, Illinois

The years spent at Luther South fill us with anxiety, anticipation, and awareness leading us to the threshold of maturity. During this period of our awkward growth, we begin to formulate impressions of the world around us. In this world of our youth we get impressions . . . . .

of our school . . . When we first approach Luther South, the cross at the main entrance impresses us as a symbol of the Christian faith. The school itself, which once impressed us as being built on a giant's scale, comes down to size after we fall into the routine of daily class work. We are impressed by the cleanliness of the hallways, classrooms, and cafeteria. At four o'clock when we look down the empty halls we feel a pride in the sense of belonging to the Christian student body at LHS.

of our teachers . . . Formal introductions to the teachers and their academic and personal merits are made in the classroom. Their wisdom and knowledge impress us as being boundless. Later, as the months pass, we find them to be not only great examples of their profession, but also good friends and counselors. We are made aware of the interest each teacher has in us, as a class and also as individuals. The impressions we receive from their ideas and ideals act as guideposts on our road of life.

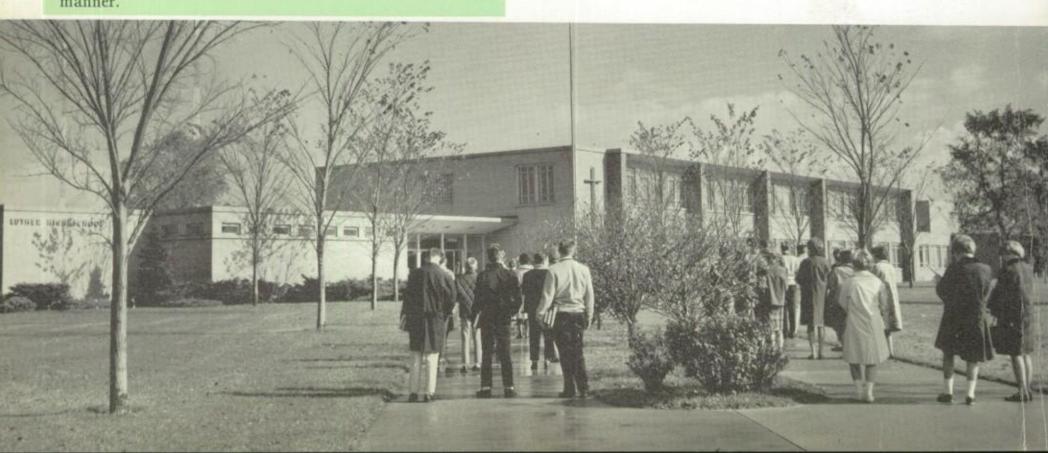

of our classmates . . . Through the hustling halls, in the crowded cafeteria, and in the congregate classes, we form impressions of our friends. We watch all our friends, noticing those who mature and grow in stature, along with those whose personality seems unaffected by their education. The impressions we form of our classmates we use as guide lines for our own personal improvement.

Christianty . . . Daily religion classes give us a foundation for our faith. Salvation through faith in Christ become more real to us through the study of His Word, daily chapel services, and private meditation. The calm of our small meditation and prayer chapel makes us aware that God is very near and eager to hear the supplications of His saints. Our ability to formulate impressions is a human trait given to us by God, and therefore we must use this ability in a charitable and God pleasing manner.

IMPRESSIONS

As we travel down high school's challenging path, we not only form our own opinions, but we also transmit impressions to other people. Friends, relations, acquaintances, and strangers judge not only us, but those factors in our environment which influence us. To those around us we give impressions . . . . .

of our school . . . At sports events people judge our school by the sportsmanship we show. On crowded buses going to and from school, the public judges LHS by the courtesy its students show toward fellow students and passengers. Everywhere a student goes he is a representative of the school and should reflect the Christian atmosphere in which he is educated.

to our teachers . . . Through class performance and extracurricular activities, our teachers are able to evaluate us: our interests, our abilities, and our achievements. Our attitudes, actions, and appearance in the classroom influence our teachers' opinions. They may or may not find us serious and attentive in our studies.

to our classmates . . . In all school activities and other outside recreation, our personalities cause our friends to form impressions about us. Our conduct, which is a true reflection of our individuality, affects the opinions which our classmates form.

of our God . . . Through private prayer, meditation, Bible reading, and the use of the means of grace, we display confidence and trust in our God. We, as shining examples of Christ at work in us, show to those in our world the very real and practical side of Christianity. God forms no impressions of us because He knows us better than we know ourselves. Even though we are sinful, He loves us in Jesus Christ and sees us as saints. All praise be to Him.

ADMINISTRATION

Louis A. Menking Superintendent

As Luther South grows, the administration, the school council, and the faculty assume more responsibility in providing the Christian education of our student body. These groups formulate policies and solve problems concerning the fulfillment of our physical, academic, and spiritual needs. Working with the student body, our administration strives toward the goal of achieving the highest possible standards of education in a Christian atmosphere.

Dr. Louis Menking, who is the superintendent of the three Lutheran high schools in the Chicago area, has done an excellent job of overseeing the maintenance of quality Christian education in this area.

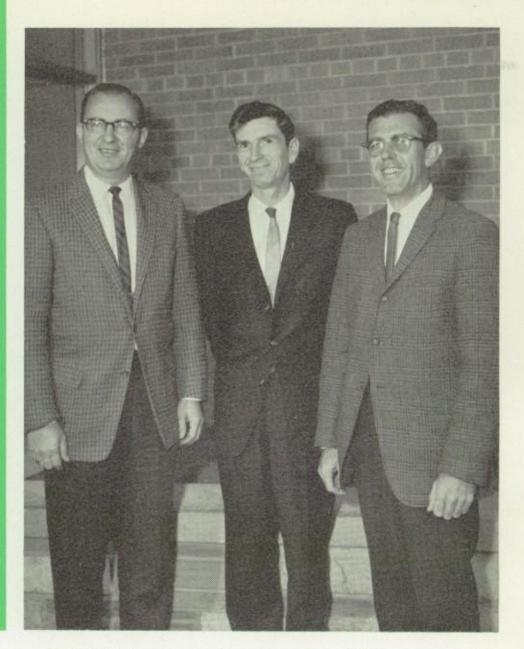

Our principal, Mr. Walter F. Steinberg, uses both his insight and ability in establishing an effective and praiseworthy leadership of the administration. Under his able guidance and administration, Luther South maintains a respected position in our community.

Walter F. Steinberg
Principal

It is the responsibility of the Luther South Council to plan and to guide the future operation of our high school. The council is made up of elected members from various Southern District Lutheran congregations.

Any large corporate body requires the aid of administrative assistants. LHS has three such specialists --the Registrar, the Dean of Students, and the Guidance Counselor. The Registrar, Mr. Robert W. Pieper, is in charge of all class schedules, student programs, and individual records. Mr. Norman C. Utech, the Dean of Students, supervises the daily life of students and assists individuals with their personal problems. The Guidance Counselor, Mr. Herbert C. Laubenstein, assists the students in planning their future. Each office provides a special service to the student individually which assists him in the present and in the approaching future.

RELIGION

The curriculum at Luther South differs from that of public schools in that religion plays a dominant role. Students participate in weekly chapel services in the gym conducted by guest pastors from various Lutheran churches. A short message is delivered on other days over the public address system. Formal religion courses include instruction in the Old and New Testaments, Church History, and Christian Doctrine. The Meditation Chapel, which is open to students and faculty members at all times, provides a peaceful atmosphere for private worship. Evidence of this religious instruction, participation, and appreciation can easily be seen in the students' daily lives.

The main purpose of the English department of Luther South is to equip the student for mature and proper usage of the English language. A speech course develops the student's ability of self expression, while it also prepares him for communication in an adult society. The study of literature gives students an appreciation of America's literary heritage as well as an appreciation of good reading material. Instruction in composition and grammar teaches the student to represent himself effectively and rationally in the written and spoken word. The library becomes the second classroom.

SOCIAL STUDIES

In our busy world of sputniks and cold war, the social studies department is constantly trying to furnish the student with the essentials of better understanding. World history reflects the downfalls and triumphs of past generations, allowing the student to gain a clear understanding of the functions and of the problem of his society. Citizenship creates a fuller understanding of our American way of life, thus creating better citizens. Geography gives the student impressions of the many lands around the world and an insight into his own great nation. U. S. history deals with the growth and development of our nation, with a fuller explanation of the freedoms of our democratic life. Problems in democracy clarifies the attachment between our constitution and our way of life. Sociology defines and explains the desires of man in relation to his neighbors and to himself.

MATHEMATICS

The mathematics department at Luther endeavors to give its students a basic understanding of mathematics which they can use in other areas. The main objectives of this department are to help the student think clearly and logically, to give the student a thorough knowledge of the subject matter, and to spur the student on to higher achievements. Since the department realizes that not all students have the same interests or abilities, it offers many different areas of math. The mathematics courses offered are: freshman math, algebra, geometry, advanced algebra, and advanced mathematics.

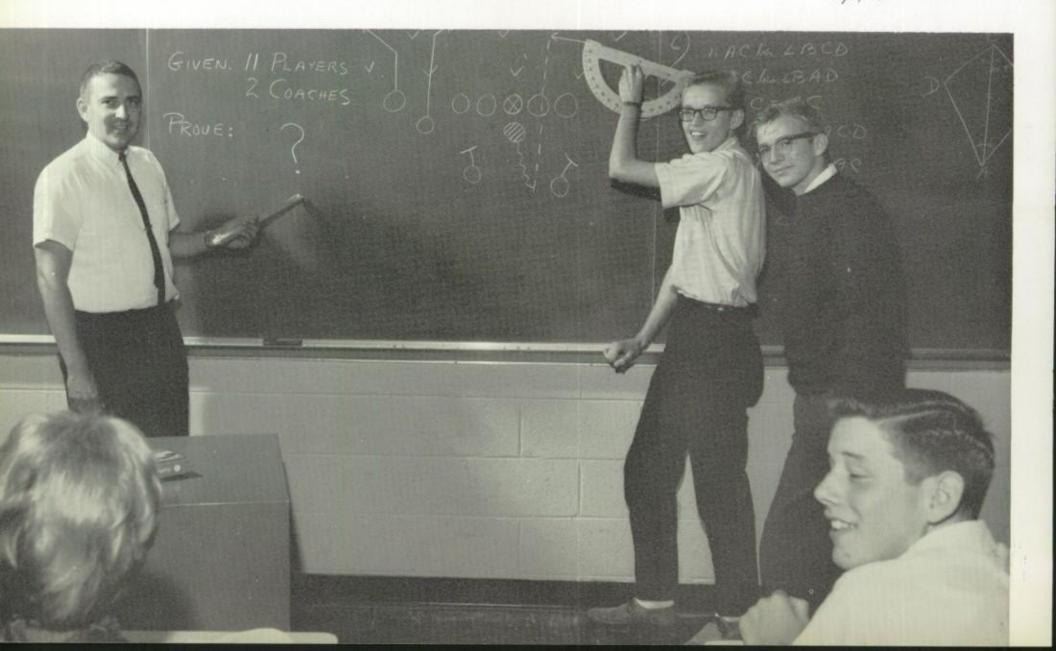

Mr. Robert Pieper Department Head Advanced Algebra

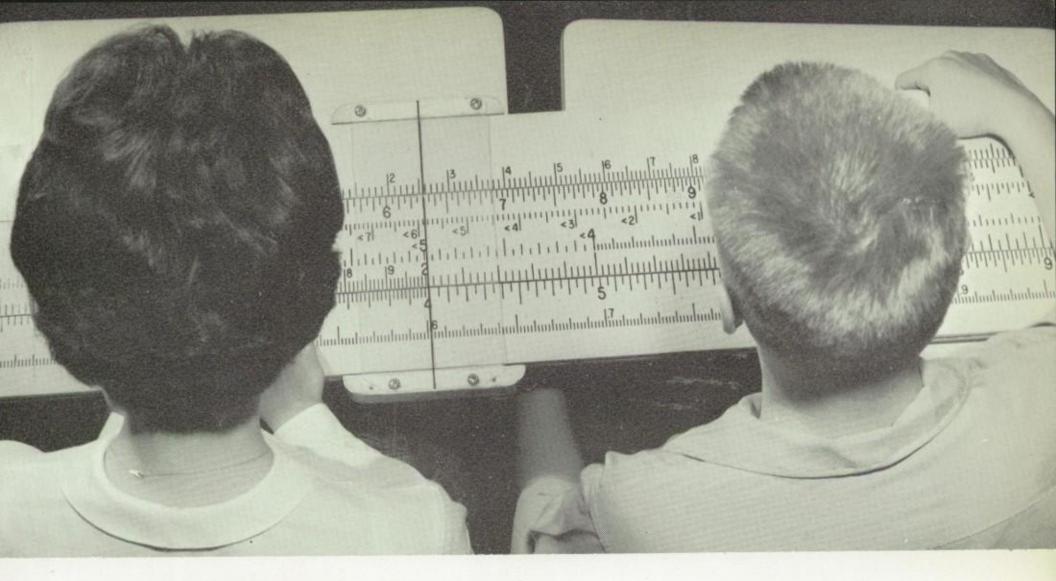

Mrs. Kathryn Clark Algebra

Mr. Norman Meier Geometry, Advanced Math

Mr. Gary Schmedemann Algebra

Mr. Richard Streit General Math

SCIENCE

The hope of the science department is to establish within its students the basic principles underlying all scientific discovery. Through lectures, class discussions, and laboratory experiments, the students are aided in the comprehension of scientific procedure and discovery. General science, biology, chemistry, and physics are offered to each student so that he may pursue his science education to the level he desires.

C. Steelman

Mr. Carl Stedman Department Head Biology

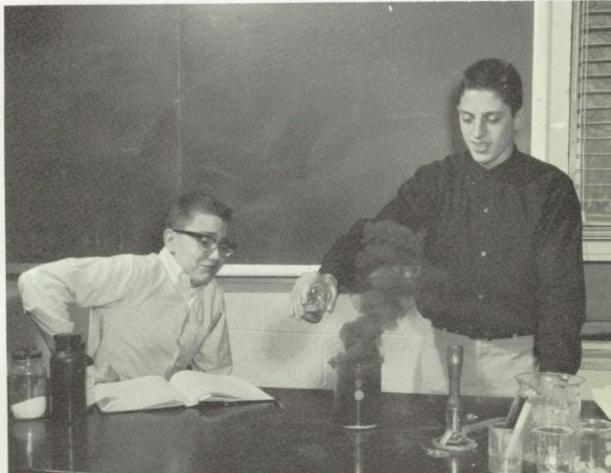

Miss Sharon Bublitz General Science

Mr. Terry Hovis Biology, General Science

Mr. Gary Schmedemann Physics

ARTS

Industrial arts, fine arts, and home arts are included under the arts. Industrial art courses are aimed at equipping young men with basic skill and knowledge in mechanical drawing, architectural drafting and wood construction. A variety of tools and a great deal of patience are primary requisites for these courses which teach neatness, accuracy, and precision design.

Fine arts offers young potential artists a way of expressing themselves--their ideas, emotions, and impressions--through the use of color and design. It also provides a musical outlet for expression through instrumental and vocal courses.

Through class experimentation the girls taking Home Arts I and II learn the basic fundamentals of homemaking. Instruction in cooking, sewing, interior decorating, and child care prepare the girls for the future.

LANGUAGES

The goal of the LHS language department is to introduce the student to the fundamentals of a particular language through primary courses. The study of a language not only acquaints the student with the vocabulary and grammar of this language, but also with its cultural aspects. Advanced courses give further insight into the history and literature of the country. Most important of all is the fact that our language department provides a medium for understanding other countries and cultures. Both Latin and German are offered at LHS.

Miss Margaret Lindquist Department Head Shorthand, Transcription, Office Practice

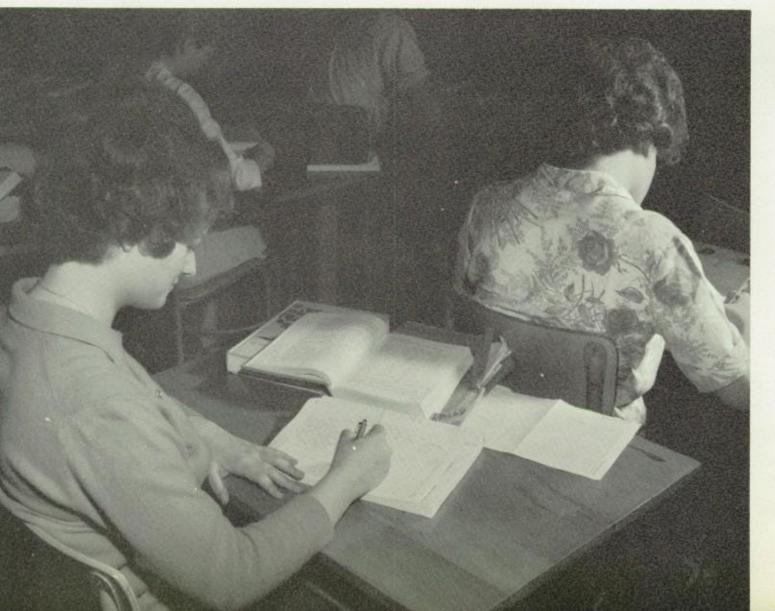

Miss Kathleen Brockman Typing, Shorthand

Mr. Everett Underkofler Typing, Bookkeeping, General Business

BUSINESS

Luther's business department trains students to live in a business world after high school. For girls who are not planning on going to college, courses like shorthand, transcription, and office practice give them vital experience for future jobs. Both girls and boys receive business education through typing, general business and book-keeping. The business department enables graduates to enter a career in business with experience and knowledge.

Mr. Robert Dinkmeyer Department Head

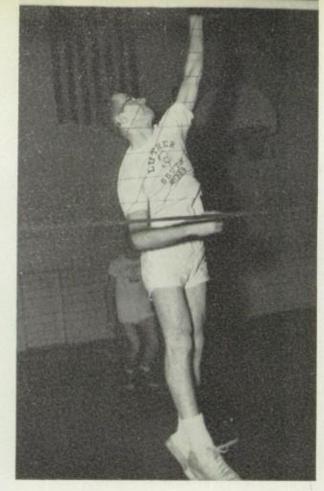

Miss Lois Kershner

Miss Sharon Bublitz

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

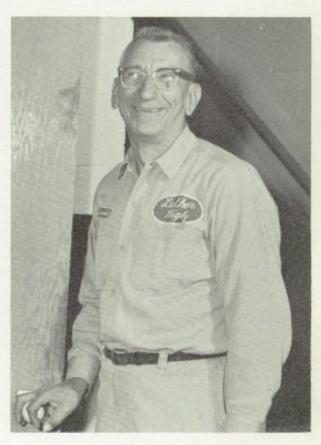

Through physical activity and excercise the physical education department develops the student's sportsmanship and co-ordination. Besides instilling these objectives, this department instructs the student in the history and rules of various sports. It is the department's desire to equip each student with desirable attitudes and efficient practices in play and in recreation.

Office Staff: Mrs. Jennie Brewton, Mrs. Lee Miller, Mrs. Eileen Marovich

Though their work is done outside the classroom, the staff is essential for the smooth functioning of the school. The cheerful ladies in the offices are soon able to identify most of the students through personal contact and from keeping their records up to date. Somewhere around noon hunger pangs signal that lunch is approaching. Without fail, our faithful cooks present an appetising meal which really hits the spot. The beginning of each day sees the school neat and clean thanks to the daily after hour efforts of our custodial staff. Without the many services rendered by these behind-the-scenes personnel Luther could not operate.
